Classroom Spotlight: T5

It has been an amazing year so far in T5 and it has been racing by! We have really enjoyed getting to know each other and learning new things. One of our favorite parts of the day is circle time. During circle time, we engage in many different songs and fun activities involving our theme of the week and letters, numbers, colors, and shapes. Thus far, we have learned about the topics community helpers, families, friends, our bodies, and opposites. We have also had a blast engaging in science experiments, making predictions about such things as whether different objects will sink or float and which objects will hit the floor first when dropped from the same height. During learning center time, we have enjoyed coloring with crayons or markers, caring for animals in our vet clinic in Dramatic Play, engineering incredible structures and vehicles in our Block Center, and learning about volume and different materials and textures in our Sensory Bin. Our language, social, motor, self-help, and cognitive skills have really blossomed and this growth has been so exciting to witness. We love to watch our friends develop and are excited to continue to find new and engaging ways to teach them in the coming months!
